ADDRESS BY BALFOUR

BRITISH PREMIER FIRES FIRST HEAVY GUN IN FISCAL RE-FORM CAMPAIGN.

FREE TRADE A VAIN FARCE

DESCRIBES CONDITIONS THAT HE CLAIMS MENACE BRIT-AIN'S SUPREMACY.

CANNOT REMEDY THE EVILS

BUT HE SUGGESTS A PALLIA-TION THAT HE BELIEVES IS STILL POSSIBLE.

London, Oct. 2.—Addressing a mass meeting at Sheffield last night in connection with the conference of the National Union of the Conservative associations, Premier Balfour delivered the speech which has been long heralded as the first heavy gun to be fired in the fiscal reform campaign which is absorbing the attention of the United Kingdom, her colonies, and, indeed, the whole world, and which has caused the present British cabinet crisis, the result of which it is impossible to foretell.
Mr. Balfour, in the course of his speech, did not even hint at the successors in the cabinet to Mr. Chamberlain, Lord George Hamilton and Mr. Ritchie. In fact, he did not mention the ministerial resignations, ignoring altogether that phase of the situation on which it was expected he would make some declaration. The premier confined himself strictly to the tariff question and his speech was to a large extent a repetition of the arguments contained in his secret pamphlet. The meeting was held in the artillery drill hall, which was the largest auditorium available. Fully 5,000 persons gathered in the hall long before 8 o'clock, and perhaps as many more who were unable to get in attended an overflow meeting in Albert hall. In addition, thousands who could not be accommodated at either meeting stood outside in the rain, joining those inside the halls in patriotic songs and cheering the names of the party leaders.

Enthusiastically Received.
Mr. Balfour, accompanied by a number of most prominent men, entered the hall a few minutes before 8 and was given an enthusiastic reception.
The Earl of Derby presided, and introduced Mr. Balfour in a brief speech.
The premier on rising at 8:05 p. m. was greeted with repeated rounds of cheers. He began with the statement that as he knew the audience wanted to hear his views on fiscal reform he would, therefore, deal with that subject alone, not introducing any alien themes after.

"What is it," the premier asked,
"that has brought this topic into exceptional prominence? There are those who would attribute the importance it has attained to that great speech delivered by a great man, Mr.
Chamberlain, in May last, but something more is required to account for a phenomenon unparalleled in the experience of any man I am now addressing."
Mr. Balfour attributed this prominence to the fact that the country was in closer touch with the colonies as a result of the late war and that representatives of the ministers in the colonies had brought before the empire the question of tariff reform.

Uneasiness Over British Trade.
Also because for a long time prior to the development of the present controversy there had been great uneasiness among all parties as to the condition of British trade in relation to the trade of the world. Mr. Chamberlain's speech would not have had the effect it did if it had not fallen on prepared ground and if Canada's effort to give preference to the mother country had not brought out threats from at least one foreign country in retaliation. This had brought home to many minds the helplessness of Great Britain, under such circumstances, to meet a situation so dangerous.

The last sixty years, continued Mr.
Balfour, had been filled with refuta-tions of the prophecies made by the great tariff reformers. He believed that the reform of 1846 was necessary at that time, but every year of the last thirty had contradicted the prophecies of the reformers.
The premier paid a tribute to Colden, who, he said, had an ideal, but he did not foresee the developments of the last half century which had made free trade an empty name and a vain farce. For fifty years England, without making a sign, had watched the wall of hostile tariffs growing up and dividing nation from nation.

Colonies Raising Obstacles.
"And our own colonies, our own flesh and blood, the very sinews of the growing empire," proceeded Mr.
Balfour, "are building up one of the most powerful after another system of protection which, when it reaches its logical conclusion, will make it as hard to export to them as to America or the other protective countries."

After detailing the history of Colden's commercial treaty with France,
Mr. Balfour said:

"I consider that there is absolutely no difference between retaining a tax for diplomatic purposes which you would otherwise repeal and imposing a tax which you would otherwise not impose for carrying out the same object. I confess that when I hear criticisms upon American and German policy which caused those great industrial nations to accompany their marvelous commercial expansion with protective duties which must have thrown a most heavy burden upon the consumer, I feel that they have a reply to which I at least have no respond. They may well say that, although protectionist, they have established permanent free trade within the limits of their own country, where everything which can hamper production or limit the increase of wealth has been abolished by their patriotism and foresight and they may well ask us whether we in the British empire can point to a similar picture, and whether our vaunted free trade includes those great self-governing colonies which we proudly boast are to be the buttresses of our empire in the future.

Free Trade an Empty Name.
"Free trade is indeed an empty name, and a vain farce if it is a fact that foreign nations are setting themselves to divert our industries, exclude our manufactures, and limit the international play of supply and demand. There has been a development of which Cobden and his contemporaries never dreamed—the development of the trust system under protection.
The phenomenon is so new that I dare scarce venture to prophesy what development it is likely to take, but you may be absolutely sure that in the alliance of trusts and tariffs, there is a danger to the capital and enterprise of this country, which acts and reacts not merely upon the capitalist, for he is at liberty to go to those regions where his industry will be looked after, but it will fall with its heavy weight upon the artisan and the labor classes, which are incapable of protecting their interests against such a calamity."

"Now, if I have rightly described the dangers and evils we suffer, you are entitled to ask me whether I know of a cure. My answer will be disappointing. I know of no cure, but I do know of a palliation. The ill has gone too far. You will not get the great commercial nations of the world to abandon protection. I fear that you will not get the great self-governing colonies to retrace the steps which we without remonstrance permitted them to take. I am here, therefore, to recommend a palliation, which I believe to be still possible. Cobden hoped and believed in free trade throughout the world. What in fact we have got to deal with is a world where international commercial relations are regulated entirely by treaty."

Should Have Something to Offer.
Mr. Balfour said that a nation should have something to offer in return for favors asked from other nations, and ridiculed the idea of Britain pleading for preference with nothing to offer in return. He then said:
"My fundamental and essential request to you tonight, to which the rest of my speech is subsidiary and incidental, is that the people of this country should give to its government that freedom of negotiation of which we have been deprived, not by force of circumstances, or by the pressure of foreign powers, but by something I can only describe as our own pedantry and self conceit."

Proceeding to deal with the question of how the freedom he desired was to be used, Mr. Balfour thought that the question was rather unreasonable. No minister could say how the navy was going to be used in a few years hence. One can only say it is necessary to have a great navy in case of need.
"In my judgment," continued the premier, "it is equally necessary that this country should have at its command those instruments of negotiation for which I am pleading. The German states illustrate how a fiscal union had preceded and strengthened a political union, but as far as our colonies are concerned, we have been content to see fiscal divisions growing up which no man of sober judgment can contemplate without disquiet."

Important Branch.
This was a most important and difficult branch of the problem, though the speaker believed that the evils of the taxation of food had been exaggerated. Still, he thought that public opinion was not yet ripe for the taxation of food. Therefore, as an adviser of a great party he was bound to tell them plainly that it was outside the limits of practical politics.
He was not anticipating a general tariff war, but he thought "we might inform any foreign country that we thought was treating us with outraged unfairness that unless they modified their policy we should take certain steps with regard to certain articles exported by them."

He proposed to ask the country to reverse, annul and altogether delete from their maxims of public conduct that they must not impose taxation except for revenue. He said that his object was to mitigate to the utmost the injury done England by hostile tariffs.

Mr. Balfour sat down amid loud and prolonged cheering. A vote of confidence in the ministers was adopted unanimously. The premier afterward addressed the overflow meeting.

AND FOUR MEN ARE DESPER-ATELY WOUNDED.

LIGERENT UP AND A POSSE
CUTS HIM DOWN.

Oxford, O., Oct. 2.—Blood splashed
on the streets of this usually quiet village last night and bullets whistled promiscuously in a desperate shooting affair and riot that attended the visit of two belligerent Kentuckians, one of whom, sorely wounded, was rescued from the hands of a mob while a rope attached to his neck was dangling over a tree limb and he was on his knees praying before being launched into eternity.

Flying bullets desperately wounded
four men, while a fifth escaped death by a narrow margin, several balls piercing his clothes.

The riot which led to the attempted lynching and the wildest night that Oxford has seen since the negro, Henry Corbin, was lynched for the murder of Mrs. Horner, was caused by the attempt of Marshal John W.
Woodruff to arrest Louis Spivey of Wagonville, Ky.

Spivey, with two companions, came
to Oxford to attend a street fair.
They were joined by Joseph Spivey of Middletown, O., and all began drinking. In the afternoon Marshal Woodruff was informed that Louis
Spivey was displaying pistols in Mrs.
Pfeiffer's saloon and shortly before 6 o'clock he encountered his man drinking from a whisky bottle in front of Ezra Burns' livery barn. Woodruff arrested him and started to the police station. Instantly, and without warning, Joseph Spivey, the prisoner's brother, who was standing ten feet away, whipped out a revolver and shot Woodruff down.

Stunned by the sudden deed, the crowd was for a moment helpless.
Then there was a rush for a nearby hardware store, and, seizing shotguns and revolvers, the crowd started in pursuit.

The two Spiveys drew their pistols and started west, through the crowded streets, shooting as they ran.
Deputy Marshal Jacob Manrod, who was near Woodruff, was shot twice at the first fire.

Near Oxford college, F. V. Jotter,
the schoolteacher, was hit by a stray bullet just as he entered a house, and probably fatally hurt. In front of Mrs. Sara Groer's house, opposite Oxford college, the Spiveys made a stand behind a tree and fired repeatedly, beating off the mob for a moment.

The posse soon dislodged them and they ran to the next alley where they separated, Louis Spivey turning and running up the alley and Joseph Spivey continuing west in High street.
Louis Spivey had not run over 100 feet up the alley when he was struck by a bullet from the posse, and his brother was knocked unconscious with a stone thrown by some one in the crowd of pursuers.

The men were taken to jail and a mob quickly surrounded the building, broke open the jail and took Joseph Spivey to an elm tree one square away on which Henry Corbin was lynched in 1892. He was strung up and let down to pray. A second time

He Was Strung Up and Let Down.
and while he was pleading for time to write to his wife Deputy Sheriff Brannan and a few assistants rushed forward, cut the rope and dashed down the street with the prisoner. He was rushed to the jail and then spirited out of town.

The mob then rushed back to the jail, where ex-Mayor P. P. Flanagan and H. D. Formder, each with two revolvers in their hands, stood at the door and swore to kill the first man who tried to enter. The baffled men strode back and Flanagan climbed to the window and appealed to them to disperse.

The Rev. T. J. Porter, Mayor Muddell and others delivered impassioned speeches appealing for order. The father of Woodruff urged on the mob and swore that if it did not exact vengeance, he would get a shotgun and kill the men himself. The speakers assured the mob that the men would be given a trial today, but that did not satisfy them. Woodruff's brother, Samuel, a farmer, then proved himself the hero of the night. Rising, he said: "Men, I am John Woodruff's brother, and I love him. For his sake, and for mine, I ask you to go home and let the law take its course."
Cheers greeted this speech, and in five minutes the mob had dispersed.

It developed later that Sheriff Bisdurf, Prosecutor Gard and others had driven up from Hamilton in buggies, and that while the speaking was in progress, they had carried the prisoners out by a rear door and had placed the men safe in jail at Hamilton.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—In a drunken frenzy early last night Frank Septowski, a grocer's clerk, shot his wife probably fatally and then while a mob of infuriated neighbors had gathered at his door and were trying to break down the barred door, he shot himself in the head, but will recover.

POURING INTO CAMP YOUNG.
Thousands of State Troops to Participate in Maneuvers.
Camp Young, Ky., Oct. 2.—The organized militia of six states poured in on Camp Young by the thousands Thursday and by night the greater portion of 9,000 or more troops had arrived, although about half of them had established permanent camp by nightfall. For the regular troops already in camp the day was rather a quiet one. Twelve hundred men from the First, Third and Twentieth infantry were set to work early in the day on a series of intrenchments with a front of about 1,700 feet. The time consumed and the quality of the work were appraised by General Bates and the umpires. The professional object in throwing up the works, however,

was that they might be used for the instruction of the officers of the state guard.
The review of the cavalry in the afternoon was attended by General Bates, the umpires and nearly all the visiting officers.

After detailing the history of Cobden's commercial treaty with France,
Mr. Balfour said:

"I consider that there is absolutely
ject. I confess that when I hear
been a most heavy burden upon the consumer, I feel that they have a response to which I at least have no reply. They may well say that, although
our vaunted free trade includes those great self-governing colonies which we proudly boast are to be the buttresses of our empire in the future.

that foreign nations are setting them-
mand. There has been a development
of the trust system under protection.
you may be absolutely sure that in
the alliance of trusts and tariffs,
against such a calamity.

them to take. I am here, therefore,
to recommend a palliation, which I
where international commercial rela-

Should Have Something to Offer.

Mr. Balfour said that a nation
should have something to offer in re-
to offer in return. He then said:

going to be used in a few years
hence. One can only say it is neces-
need.

this country should have at its command those instruments of negotiation for which I am pleading. The
disquiet."

This was a most important and dif-
opinion was not yet ripe for the taxa-
side the limits of practical politics.

that they must not impose taxation ex-
object was to mitigate to the utmost
tariffs.

Mr. Balfour sat down amid loud
ed unanimously. The premier afterward addressed the overflow meeting.

ATELY WOUNDED.

CUTS HIM DOWN.

eternity.

piercing his clothes.

lynching and the wildest night that Oxford has seen since the negro,
Henry Corbin, was lynched for the
by the attempt of Marshal John W.
Woodruff to arrest Louis Spivey of Wagonville, Ky.

to Oxford to attend a street fair.
They were joined by Joseph Spivey
of Middletown, O., and all began
drinking. In the afternoon Marshal
Woodruff was informed that Louis
Spivey was displaying pistols in Mrs.
Pfeiffer's saloon and shortly before 6
o'clock he encountered his man drinking from a whisky bottle in front of
lice station. Instantly, and without warning, Joseph Spivey, the prisoner's
shot Woodruff down.

crowd was for a moment helpless.
Then there was a rush for a nearby
pursuit.

ed streets, shooting as they ran.
the first fire.

probably fatally hurt. In front of Mrs. Sara Greer's house, opposite Oxford college, the Spiveys
repeatedly, beating off the mob for a moment.

running up the alley and Joseph Spivey continuing west in High street.
the crowd of pursuers.

mob quickly surrounded the building,
away on which Henry Corbin was
lynched in 1892. He was strung up
and let down to pray. A second time

spirited out of town.

and H. D. Formder, each with two re-
disperse.

and swore that if it did not exact
himself the hero of the night. Rising,
five minutes the mob had dispersed.

doff, Prosecutor Gard and others had driven up from Hamilton in buggies,
and that while the speaking was in
progress, they had carried the prison-
the men safe in jail at Hamilton.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—In a drunken
frenzy early last night Frank Sep-
in the head, but will recover.

Thousands of State Troops to Participate in Maneuvers.

in on Camp Young by the thousands
the First, Third and Twentieth in-
in throwing up the works however,

guard.

visiting officers.

FATHER TRYs TO FIND WAYWARD GIRL

The story told by J. Mohler to the police today is full of pathos and would move most men who have love and affection to any degree for the home and fireside. The story told by the man is regarding his wayward daughter, Goldie Mohler, but seventeen years of age, but who ere this has perhaps experienced more than most women three times her age. She left home over a month ago and no trace of her has been found.

It seems that the father has been working in the harvest fields about Sauk Centre. Sometime ago he sent some money home to his daughter to provide for several of his little children. The mother of the children is dead. Shortly after the money was sent to Goldie she and another Brainerd girl by the name of Nellie Frye left the city and are supposed to have gone to Fargo. It is known that letters have been sent to the girls at that place.

A few days ago the father went to Fargo on the sad mission of trying to find some trace of his girl. He failed in his attempt and returned to Brainerd, but his heart still burning with love for her he left again this afternoon for Fargo to renew his search.

It seems that the Nellie Frye also leaves a father here in the city and he too is worried about the girl's whereabouts. His name is George Frye.

The girls were always great companions when they were in Brainerd and not having the watchful eye of a mother on them they soon drifted far out from the endearing influence of the home, and finally decided to leave their homes altogether and lead a life of shame.

The police are putting forth every effort to locate the young girls and they will be brought back to the city if they are found.

This season they have added a lot of the latest specialties to the olio, and promise us a performance full of everything good in the minstrel line.

The company carry their own band and orchestra and will give a parade on the principal streets the day of the show. It is worth hearing.

WALKER WHITESIDE.

The dual role which Walker Whiteside will play this season in his new comedy "We are King," will, it is said afford him ample scope for the display of his talent, both along tragic and light comedy lines. The play is also said to be quite a novelty in the art of dramatic construction. Its story and scene of action take place in an imaginary kingdom called Kahnburg supposed to be situated in the north of Germany. Mr. Whiteside is to play the role of an English tourist in search of romantic material for a story for a London publication, and that of Hector, the cruel, selfish and heartless king of Kahnburg. A charming love story is embraced in the play. Mr. Whiteside will present "We are King" in this city during the coming season.

WILLIAM OWEN.

William Owen, a young actor who has been appearing with success for several years in Shakespearean and standard plays is this season presenting a new romantic play entitled "When Louis XI was King," from his own pen. The new play is based on Sir Walter Scott's romance, Quentin Durward.

The story told by J. Mohler to the police today is full of pathos and would move most men who have love and affection to any degree for the home and fireside. The story told by the man is regarding his wayward daughter, Goldie Mohler, but seventeen years of age, but who ere this has perhaps experienced more than most women three times her age. She left home over a month ago and no trace of her has been found.

It seems that the father has been working in the harvest fields about Sauk Centre. Sometime ago he sent some money home to his daughter to provide for several of his little children. The mother of the children is dead. Shortly after the money was sent to Goldie she and another Brainerd girl by the name of Nellie Frye left the city and are supposed to have gone to Fargo. It is known that letters have been sent to the girls at that place.

A few days ago the father went to Fargo on the sad mission of trying to find some trace of his girl. He failed in his attempt and returned to Brainerd, but his heart still burning with love for her he left again this afternoon for Fargo to renew his search.

The girls were always great companions when they were in Brainerd and not having the watchful eye of a mother on them they soon drifted far out from the endearing influence of the home, and finally decided to leave their homes altogether and lead a life of shame.

Rocky Mountain Tea put up in tablet form ready for use. Just the same as the tea—simply concentrated for your convenience. A true blood and body tonic. 35 cents. H. P. Dunn & Co. mf

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

MAHARA'S MINSTRELS.

No form of amusement seems to please theatre goers more than a good old minstrel show. Mahara Bros., who claim to have one of the best colored minstrel shows touring the country, will bring their organization to the Brainerd theatre for one performance only, Saturday evening, October 10th. This season they have added a lot of the latest specialties to the olio, and promise us a performance full of everything good in the minstrel line.

The dual role which Walker Whiteside will play this season in his new comedy "We are King," will, it is said afford him ample scope for the display of his talent, both along tragic and light comedy lines. The play is also said to be quite a novelty in the art of dramatic construction. Its story and scene of action take place in an imaginary kingdom called Kahnborg supposed to be situated in the north of Germany. Mr. Whiteside is to play the role of an English tourist in search of romantic material for a story for a London publication, and that of Hector, the cruel, selfish and heartless king of Kahnborg. A charming love story is embraced in the play. Mr. Whiteside will present "We are King" in this city during the coming season.

WILLIAM OWEN.

William Owen, a young actor who has been appearing with success for several years in Shakespearean and standard plays is this season presenting a new romantic play entitled "When Louis XI was King," from his own pen. The new play is based on Sir Walter Scott's romance, Quentin Durward.

 SNUFFED OUT

Mrs. Vet Borders and Daughter and Two Babies
 Are Drowned at Long Lake Narrows Early Last Night.

Attempted to Cross in a Wagon and the Wagon, Horses and All are Submerged== Bodies Not Recovered.

The appalling news was received in the city this afternoon of the accidental drowning last night of four people at what is called the "Narrows" which crosses Long Lake, about eight miles north of Brainerd. The names of the dead are Mrs. Vet Borders, her daughter, Alice Hurd, aged eighteen, who was married a short time ago and two little girls of Mrs. Borders, her youngest.

Mrs. Borders and the other three people had been in Brainerd yesterday shopping. They started on the home trip last night reaching A. G. Emmons' place, which is just this side of the "Narrows" about 7 o'clock last night.

On reaching Mr. Emmons the women were told by him that they had better not go across the "narrows" but they thought they would go. They did go and nothing more was heard from them by Mr. Emmons until some of the folks at the Border's home came across looking for the women, they not having returned from town. This was about 11 o'clock. The men went back to the "narrows" and soon found the horses in the water drowned, and the truth of the awful fate which met Mrs. Borders and her three children dawned on the searchers. A search for the bodies was commenced, but up to three o'clock this afternoon they had not been found.

Mrs. Borders was a woman about 40 years of age, Mrs. Hurd had been married but a short time ago. Mr. and Mrs.
 Borders formerly lived on the Henry Spalding farm but lately they moved on the A. Mahlum farm just the other side of the "narrows."

A searching party is still at work at Long lake trying to find the bodies.

DEER HEAD CASE DISMISSED.

But One Witness Placed on Stand by State ---Motion of Defendant's Attorney Case Dismissed.

Yesterday afternoon the hearing in the case of the state against Frank D.
 Schrader charged with having a deer head unlawfully in his possession was before Judge J. H. Warner in the municipal court. After the state had taken all the testimony, Deputy Game Warden Saunders being the only witness on the stand, on motion of the attorney for the defendant, the case was dismissed.

The defendant, F. D. Schrader is a taxidermist at Pequot. Deputy Game Warden Saunders in September took a deer head away from Mr. Schrader which was partly mounted. The head had been left with him by an Iowa party to be fixed up. Schrader was brought to Brainerd and was taken before Judge Warner. He was placed under $25 bonds and was cited to appear in court yesterday to answer to the charge of having the deer head unlawfully in his possession.

The state was represented on the trial yesterday afternoon by Judge Alderman, in the absence of County Attorney Crane, and Polk & Polk appeared for the defendant. At the outstart the attorneys for the defendant objected to the introduction of any evidence under the complaint as it did not state an offense. The court overruled this objection and the first witness, and in fact the only one called, by the state was Jeff Saunders, the deputy game warden who made the seizure. His testimony was relative to the taking of the deer head and what he understood to be the law governing such cases. At the conclusion of this testimony the attorneys for Mr. Schrader moved to dismiss the case on the ground that the deer head was a manufactured article in part or whole. This motion was made under Chapter 336, section 17, of the general laws of 1903. The court sustained the motion.

This case was really a test of the law under this chapter and much interest has been manifested in the outcome.
 The law is evidently very clear on the point in issue, but the fact that the antlers of the deer had the resemblance of having been in a state when the deer sheds, gave the state the right to presume that the same was shot out of season. Of course Schrader was not to blame for this, if it were true that the deer was shot out of season, but the man who left it there to be mounted.

WEDDING BELLS.

Mr. Herman Stade and Miss Rose Sundine
 United in Marriage--Mr. S. G. Stewart Returns With His Bride.

The week has been a week of weddings in Brainerd, several very popular people having entered the matrimonial state. The marriage of Mr. Herman Stade and Miss Rose Sundine has been chronicled. It occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J.
 Sundine, 1010, Laurel street E., on Wednesday evening in the presence of some thirty guests; relatives and intimate friends, Rex. A. H. Carver officia-ating. After the wedding ceremony a pretty wedding dinner was served following which the happy couple took their departure for the twin cities for a brief visit. The rooms at the Sundine home were beautifully decorated with sweet peas and autumn leaves, which gave a very pretty effect. The maid of honor was Miss Jennie Lindin and the best man was Mr. Fritz Hagberg. The bride was dressed in a gown made of blue poplin trimmed with cream all over lace. Mr. and Mrs. Stade will make their home in this city after their return from their wedding tour. Both are popular and well known young people.

The many friends of Mr. S. G. Stewart will be surprised that he has taken out himself a life partner. Mr. and Mrs.
 Stewart arrived in the city from Eau Claire, Wis., yesterday afternoon where they were married. Mr. Stewart looks after the Weyerhaeuser interests in this section and is very popular throughout northern Minnesota.

It is sometimes an easy matter to fool the public, but you can't keep it up very long. They are sure to find you out, and every time a man is fooled, another skeptic is made. We are naturally skeptical when reading a published statement given by some stranger in a far away place, but the circumstances are entirely different when home endorsement is presented. The testimony of local citizens renders deceit impossible. It is so easy for you to investigate.

 worse and causing me discomfort to say

KILLED THEIR UNCLE

THREE VAN WORMER BROTHERS QUICKLY PUT TO DEATH IN AN ELECTRIC CHAIR.

NO SENSATIONAL INCIDENTS

EXECUTIONS PROCEEDED WITH VERY QUIETLY AND IN A RAPID MANNER.

Danmora, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Without one untoward incident to mar the perfect and dignified execution of the death penalty imposed by the trial court, sustained by the court of appeals and not interfered with by Governor Odell, Willis, Frederick and Burton Van Wormer were put to death in fifteen and one-half minutes at Clinton prison for the murder of their uncle, Peter A. Hallenbeck, at Greendale, Columbia county, on Christmas eve, 1901. There was not one sensational circumstance connected with the execution. The men walked from the doors of their cells in the care of their priest and flanked on either side by prison deputies with calm demeanor but extreme pallor.

Father Belanger, a picturesque white haired figure, not in the robes of his office, but in the every day black frock coat of clerical cut, with a little purple stole about the shoulders, walked along with each of the condemned men in turn, saying words of consolation.

Willis Van Wormer entered the death chamber at 11:34:30, the current was turned into his body one minute later and at 11:37 he was declared dead.

At 11:41:30 Frederick entered the death chamber; at 11:42 the current was turned on and he was declared dead at 11:43:30.

Burton entered the death chamber at 11:47, the current was turned on at 11:47:30 and he was declared dead at 11:48:30.

Precautions to Deadend Sound. During the first execution Father Charbonneau remained in the corridor between the death cells, reading prayers and invocations to the remaining Van Wormers. Every precaution had been taken to prevent the remaining men from hearing more than the departure of their brother from the room. The doors had been padded and the interstices stuffed with cotton so that the steps of those who removed the lifeless body from the death chamber to the morgue could not be heard.

Three applications of the current and four minutes' time were required for the execution of Willis, but only two applications of the full current were deemed necessary in the case of Frederick and two minutes from the time he crossed the threshold of the room the doctors pronounced him dead. The bodies were carried out into the prison morgue and the summons for the last brother was taken back by the prison guards, and Burton was brought in.

Either Burton was taller than his brothers, or sat up straighter in the chair, for the strap which is intended to cover the eyes did not reach high enough to blindfold him and as the current was switched on he was still looking over the upper edge of the strap toward the priest. He was killed even more quickly than the other two. The current was turned on at 11:47:30. Only one application was required, although it was retained slightly longer at full pressure than in the other cases.

Father Belanger said after the execution that the last hours of the men were spent in exceeding quiet, with the strictest attention to the spiritual interests which were their sole concern.

No farewells were said, under Father Belanger's advice, until the grating of the big steel doors which separated them from the corridor was heard. Then as Willis was led from his cell he was allowed to step over to the cells of Burton and Fred and, through the openings between the heavy bars of the cages in which they were confined, pressed his face and in turn kissed those of his two brothers, at the same time shaking hands and saying as he turned away: "Be brave, boys."

Fred then said farewell to Burton, and was led away, to be followed by Burton, who called goodbye to Allen Mooney, the last occupant of the death cells.

The Van Wormer boys, in company with their cousin, Harvey Bruce, drove from their home in Kinderhook to Greendale, fourteen miles distant, where their uncle, Peter A. Hallenbeck, lived. He was called to the door and four masked men shot him, inflicting wounds from which he died in a few minutes. All the boys were arrested, betrayed by their footprints in the snow. Bruce turned state's evidence and was sentenced to eighteen years in prison.

On the testimony of Bruce, the Van Wormers were convicted and sentenced to die on May 30, 1902. They appealed and the case went over to the present year. Again sentenced to death this time on June 6, they were twice respited by Governor Odell, but the law was finally allowed to take its course.

The motive for the crime is alleged to have been found in the fact that Hallenbeck foreclosed a mortgage on the house of the stepmother of the Van Wormers, thus compelling them to move to Kinderhook.

At St. Paul, Margaret Richter, two and one-half years old, obtained a bottle containing strychnine and drank the contents, dying in less than three hours.

The Pittsburg National league team won from the Boston American league team in the first game of the world's championship series, by a score of 7 to 3, at Boston Thursday.

Mob Breaks Into Jail and Hangs Alleged Murderer.

Marshall, Tex., Oct. 2.—A mob of several hundred men forced their way through the brick walls of the city jail with a telephone pole last night, and with sledge hammers and crowbars, took out Walter Davis, a negro, and marched him to the west side of town, where he was hanged to a tree. The lynching was the result of the killing of Constable Hayes Thursday morning, while he was taking a negro to jail. Hayes was shot from ambush and riddled with bullets. Shortly after the killing of the constable, Walter Davis and two other negroes were arrested and lodged in jail at Marshall. A mob formed during the afternoon and attacked the jail. The Marshall musketeers were ordered out and arrived at the jail after the mob had secured the negro.

Canadian Soo Quietly Celebrating the Good News.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 2.—The atmosphere surrounding the Soos during the past week was considerably clarified last night owing to the announcement made by the Ontario government that arrangements have been completed whereby the companies will be extended temporary aid and the men paid next Saturday. A private telegram from Mr. Clergue, who left Toronto for the Soo Thursday, confirms this. The Canadian Soo has been placarded to this effect and the town is quietly celebrating the news. The employees in town will be paid immediately but assigned claims will be closely scrutinized and speculators who have been buying up the time checks for a small percentage their investment.

Minneapolis Strikers Persuade Imported Men Not to Work.

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.—The strikers succeeded in heading off two installments of men who came from Duluth to take their places at the flour mills yesterday. Each lot numbered sixteen, and they were so easily persuaded not to go to the mills that it looks as if they had only intended getting a free ride to Minneapolis. The mill company at first tried to hold their baggage until the men had worked two days to pay for their transportation, but finally gave it up after Chief of Police Conroy had been appealed to. That the stationary engineers employed at the mills are likely to strike, too, out of sympathy for the flour loaders, is the latest phase of the situation.

President Buchanan Expects to Be Again Elected by Ironworkers.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.—Frank Buchanan's re-election as president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers is now assured, according to his friends, who lay claim to forty-eight out of the eighty-three votes in the annual convention now in session. Not until Thursday morning did President Buchanan make known his desire for re-election and then it was stated he had done so only after he felt that the convention had endorsed his actions and after his supporters had insisted that he could win out.

Sam Parks refuses to give any figure but repeats his claim that E. F. Donnell of Albany, would be named for president.

Only One Witness Examined in Tillman Murder Trial.

Lexington, S. C., Oct. 2.—The fourth day of the trial of James H. Tillman, charged with the murder of Editor Gonzales, was taken up almost wholly with the reading of editorials from the State, Gonzales' newspaper, files of which, covering 1902, were placed in evidence Tuesday by counsel for the state. It is estimated that some thirty columns were read. The papers from which the editorials were read, run from the first of April to the end of the year, 1902. This covers the period in which the gubernatorial campaign for 1902 was carried on, and among the editorials read were those in opposition to the prospective candidacy of the defendant for the governorship of South Carolina. Others criticized the action of the defendant in sending a telegram to the president in connection with the incident of a presentation of a sword to Major Micah Jenkins, while editorials read later in the day were comments on the election results.

James W. King, member of the legislature from Florence county, was the only witness examined. In answer to questions by the solicitor, he said: "On the day before the shooting I saw a pistol in Mr. Tillman's pocket." He said on cross examination that he was aware of unfriendly feelings between the defendant and N. G. Gonzales.

CELEBRATION CLOSES.

Visiting Mayors Banquetted in the Windy City.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—A banquet to the visiting mayors and a concert by the Marine band, followed by a public gathering at the Auditorium theater last night, at which Mayor Seth Low of New York was the principal speaker, brought the Centennial celebration to a close with the exception of the fireworks display, which will be given tonight.

At 6 o'clock the mayor of a score of cities sat down to a banquet in their honor attended by more than 400 citizens of Chicago. At 7:30 the United States Marine band of Washington began a concert in the Auditorium theater and one hour later the banqueters took seats on the platform to listen to Mayor Low's speech upon "Civic Federation." Mayor Low was introduced by Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago, and was given a warm reception.

Joseph Jefferson, the veteran actor, read an original poem to the banqueters.

Sir Thomas Lipton was expected to be present at the banquet but his doctor advised him against it.

Harry Jacobs, seventeen year old, was almost instantly killed by an interurban car at St. Paul Thursday. He was crossing the tracks on a bicycle, and in attempting to dodge one car was struck by another.

Danemora, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Without one untoward incident to mar the perfect and dignified execution of the death penalty imposed by the trial court, sustained by the court of appeals and not interfered with by Governor Odell, Willis, Frederick and Burton Van Wormer were put to death in fifteen and one-half minutes at Clinton prison for the murder of their uncle, Peter A. Hallenbeck, at Greendale, Columbia county, on Christmas eve, 1901. There was not one sensational circumstance connected with the execution. The men walked from the doors of their cells in the care of their priest and flanked on either side by prison deputies with calm demeanor but extreme pallor.

Father Belanger, a picturesque white haired figure, not in the robes of his office, but in the every day black frock coat of clerical cut, with a little purple stole about the shoulders, walked along with each of the condemned men in turn, saying words of consolation.

Willis Van Wormer entered the death chamber at 11:34:30, the current was turned into his body one minute later and at 11:37 he was declared dead.

At 11:41:30 Frederick entered the death chamber; at 11:42 the current was turned on and he was declared dead at 11:43:20.

Burton entered the death chamber at 11:47, the current was turned on at 11:47:30 and he was declared dead at 11:48:30.

Precautions to Deadend Sound.

During the first execution Father Charbonneau remained in the corridor between the death cells, reading prayers and invocations to the remaining Van Wormers. Every precaution had been taken to prevent the remaining men from hearing more than the departure of their brother from the room. The doors had been padded and the interstices stuffed with cotton so that the steps of those who removed the lifeless body from the death chamber to the morgue could not be heard.

Three applications of the current and four minutes' time were required for the execution of Willis, but only two applications of the full current were deemed necessary in the case of Frederick and two minutes from the time he crossed the threshold of the room the doctors pronounced him dead. The bodies were carried out into the prison morgue and the summons for the last brother was taken back by the prison guards, and Burton was brought in.

Either Burton was taller than his brothers, or sat up straighter in the chair, for the strap which is intended to cover the eyes did not reach high enough to blindfold him and as the current was switched on he was still looking over the upper edge of the strap toward the priest. He was killed even more quickly than the other two. The current was turned on at 11:47:30. Only one application was required, although it was retained slightly longer at full pressure than in the other cases.

Father Belanger said after the execution that the last hours of the men were spent in exceeding quiet, with the strictest attention to the spiritual interests which were their sole concern.

No farewells were said, under Father Belanger's advice, until the grating of the big steel doors which separated them from the corridor was heard. Then as Willis was led from his cell he was allowed to step over to the cells of Burton and Fred and, through the openings between the heavy bars of the cages in which they were confined, pressed his face and in turn kissed those of his two brothers, at the same time shaking hands and saying as he turned away: "Be brave, boys."

Fred then said farewell to Burton, and was led away, to be followed by Burton, who called goodbye to Allen Mooney, the last occupant of the death cells.

The Van Wormer boys, in company with their cousin, Harvey Bruce, drove from their home in Kinderhook to Greendale, fourteen miles distant, where their uncle, Peter A. Hallenbeck, lived. He was called to the door and four masked men shot him, inflicting wounds from which he died in a few minutes. All the boys were arrested, betrayed by their footprints in the snow. Bruce turned state's evidence and was sentenced to eighteen years in prison.

On the testimony of Bruce, the Van Wormers were convicted and sentenced to die on May 30, 1902. They appealed and the case went over to the present year. Again sentenced to death, this time on June 6, they were twice respited by Governor Odell, but the law was finally allowed to take its course.

The motive for the crime is alleged to have been found in the fact that Hallenbeck foreclosed a mortgage on the house of the stepmother of the Van Wormers, thus compelling them to move to Kinderhook.

At St. Paul, Margaret Richter, two and one-half years old, obtained a bottle containing strychnine and drank the contents, dying in less than three hours.

The Pittsburg National league team won from the Boston American league team in the first game of the world's championship series, by a score of 7 to 2, at Boston Thursday.

Marshall, Tex., Oct. 2.—A mob of several hundred men forced their way through the brick walls of the city jail with a telephone pole last night, and with sledge hammers and crowbars, took out Walter Davis, a negro, and marched him to the west side of town, where he was hanged to a tree. The lynching was the result of the killing of Constable Hayes Thursday morning, while he was taking a negro to jail. Hayes was shot from ambush and riddled with bullets. Shortly after the killing of the constable, Walter Davis and two other negroes were arrested and lodged in jail at Marshall. A mob formed during the afternoon and attacked the jail. The Marshall ruffians were ordered out and arrived at the jail after the mob had secured the negro.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 2.—The atmosphere surrounding the Soo during the past week was considerably clarified last night owing to the announcement made by the Ontario government that arrangements have been completed whereby the companies will be extended temporary aid and the men paid next Saturday. A private telegram from Mr. Clergue, who left Toronto for the Soo Thursday, confirms this. The Canadian Soo has been placarded to this effect and the town is quietly celebrating the news. The employees in town will be paid immediately but assigned claims will be closely scrutinized and speculators who have been buying up the time checks for a small percentage their investment.

Minneapolis Strikers Persuade Important Men Not to Work.

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.—The strikers succeeded in heading off two installations of men who came from Duluth to take their places at the flour mills yesterday. Each lot numbered sixteen, and they were so easily persuaded not to go to the mills that it looks as if they had only intended getting a free ride to Minneapolis. The mill company at first tried to hold their baggage until the men had worked two days to pay for their transportation, but finally gave it up after Chief of Police Conroy had been appealed to. That the stationary engineers employed at the mills are likely to strike, too, out of sympathy for the flour loaders, is the latest phase of the situation.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 2.—Frank Buchanan's re-election as president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers is now assured, according to his friends, who lay claim to forty-eight out of the eighty-three votes in the annual convention now in session. Not until Thursday morning did President Buchanan make known his desire for re-election and then it was stated he had done so only after he felt that the convention had endorsed his actions and after his supporters had insisted that he could win out.

Sam Parks refuses to give any figures but asserts his claim that F. P. Campbell of Albany, would be named for president.

Only One Witness Examined in Tillman Murder Trial.

Lexington, S. C., Oct. 2.—The fourth day of the trial of James H. Tillman, charged with the murder of Editor Gonzales, was taken up almost wholly with the reading of editorials from the State, Gonzales' newspaper, files of which, covering 1902, were placed in evidence Tuesday by counsel for the state. It is estimated that some thirty columns were read. The papers from which the editorials were read, run from the first of April to the end of the year, 1902. This covers the period in which the gubernatorial campaign for 1902 was carried on, and among the editorials read were those in opposition to the prospective candidacy of the defendant for the governorship of South Carolina. Others criticized the action of the defendant in sending a telegram to the president in connection with the incident of a presentation of a sword to Major Micah Jenkins, while editorials read later in the day were comments on the election results.

James W. King, member of the legislature from Florence county, was the only witness examined. In answer to questions by the solicitor, he said: "On the day before the shooting I saw a pistol in Mr. Tillman's pocket." He said on cross examination that he was aware of unfriendly feelings between the defendant and N. G. Gonzales.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—A banquet to the visiting mayors and a concert by the Marine band, followed by a public gathering at the Auditorium theater last night, at which Mayor Seth Low of New York was the principal speaker, brought the Centennial celebration to a close with the exception of the fireworks display, which will be given tonight.

At 6 o'clock the mayor of a score of cities sat down to a banquet in their honor attended by more than 400 citizens of Chicago. At 7:30 the United States Marine band of Washington began a concert in the Auditorium theater and one hour later the banqueters took seats on the platform to listen to Mayor Low's speech upon "Civic Federation." Mayor Low was introduced by Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago, and was given a warm reception.

Joseph Jefferson, the veteran actor, read an original poem to the banqueters.

Harry Jacobs, seventeen year old, was almost instantly killed by an interurban car at St. Paul Thursday. He was crossing the tracks on a bicycle, and in attempting to dodge one car was struck by another.
